The dawn of the Williamson Act

By Walt Hecox

Editor's note: This is the third in a series of stories by Walt Hecox about the problems — sometimes the plight — of landowners, ranchers and farmers in the Livermore-Amador Valley.

More than a quarter century ago when California's post war population explosion was flowering into full bloom it became apparent something had to be done to protect farm and ranch lands from rising tax rates.

While cities grew where orchard, farm and ranchland once dominated the landscape, land owners who wanted to continue to conduct an agricultural operation nearby were faced with taxes that made farming impossible.

To begin with local greenbelts were established to protect the farmer, but as bureaucracy took control of government at the city and county level it became apparent to administrators and planners that in some cases landowners were able to benefit by lower taxes while actually engaged in speculation which could lead, eventually, to a huge profit.

The result was a two way boomerang, the executives at the local level granting greenbelt privileges grudgelingly while honest farmers were taxed out of business unless they sold their holdings developers.

Somewhere between the two extremes were the speculators who knew their land would not immediately be developed but hoped for a future bonanza.

They were assessed at urban rates on land that was being used for rural purposes and eventually many of these people allowed their land to be confiscated for back taxes rather than meet the huge burden.

The Williamson Act was designed to afford relief to agricultural interests while stopping the speculator from benefitting from a rural tax rate while waiting for his inevitable profit.

At the time it was passed no rigid anti-growth movements had developed nor were there any laws on the books of municipalities or counties designed to thwart growth.

The Williamson act was designed to protect the tax payers from speculators on the local level and at the same time provide reasonable relief for farmers and ranchers.

To achieve this the act was so designed that the agriculturist entered into what amounts to a ten year contract with the state.

In exchange for a lower assessed valuation — and it can be considerable—the rancher promises he will use his land only for agricultural purposes for a period of ten years.

Let him change his mind during that period and sell for another use and, unless he is allowed an exception which is extremely unlikely, he must pay back taxes at the urban assessment rate.

Many landowners — and Supervisor John D. Murphy—believe the restrictions are excessive. They cite the changes in plans death can make for a person who inherits land locked in under the Williamson act.

A widow, for instance, inheriting land restricted to Williamson act use, would be forced to operate the one man farm which had been worked by her husband.

Critics of the act maintain a 95 pound woman is hardly capable of filling the shoes of a 220 pound man and male chauvinism has nothing to do with the case.

They point out that if a Williamson act farmer wants to construct a house for his son on his property he must, if he wants the house to be put in his heir's name, secure special permission which is rarely granted.

There are many restrictions designed to protect the local government from abuses in the past.

So many landowners claim the act in effects confiscates their property and puts them in the position of Socialist farmers working for the state.

They benefit from the act tremendously. Land that might have been assessed at $6500 an acre might be assessed at $200. But they pay for that with their liberty.

It is a price some are unwilling to pay, though most of the valley landowners have placed themselves under the act's protection and more are steadily submitting to its rigid rules.

Tomorrow: The land bank and the men whose lives are mortgaged.

Most of the land in the Livermore - Amador Valley is presently under the protection of the Williamson Act. The dark shaded area shows government owned land, the mottled areas mark the limits of Livermore and Pleasanton, light grey is Williamson and the white is not under Williamson act protection.

VCSD -historians appeal for funds

Alameda County Burau

OAKLAND — Two valley organizations were among those petitioning for some $2.25 million in federal community development funds that will become available to Alameda County over the next three years.

The Alameda County Board of Supervisors held its second public hearing on allocation of that money Tuesday and approved an application which lists generalized categories for expenditure of the $375,210 that will be made available during the first year of that program.

Jim Trimingham, chairman of the Landmark Committee of the Livermore-Amador Valley Historical Society, asked the supervisors to consider spending some of the federal funds on restoration of the Fallon House and the Alviso Adobe (both located on Foothill Road in the Pleasanton area).

Trimingham said the Fallon House is in immediate danger since it is "right in the path of a bulldozer" and added the historical society voted last week to assume operational and maintenance costs for the Fallon House if the supervisors would help them acquire it.

He said the Alviso Adobe was "one of the first three homes built in the Livermore-Amador Valley" and added the historical society would like to acquire it but "it is not necessary to have funds out of your first year's allotment" allotment" since that structure is in no immediate danger.

Lila Euler, president of the Valley Community Services District Board of Directors, made a second appeal to the board for funds for VCSD programs.

At the supervisors' first hearing on allocation of the funds, Euler had petitioned for some $400,000 over the three-year peiord to fund development of the district's 22-acre sports park, fund acquisition of 26 acres adjacent to the Shannon Center and to help establish a youth services program.

On Tuesday, Euler addressed herself specifically to the youth services program, which would cost around $20,000. Euler explained the district is already running a pilot youth program in conjunction with the San Ramon School District and would like to expand that program throughout the Dublin area.

The program, she said, would include social activities, counseling, education, employment counseling, workshops on drug abuse, etc., community service activities and leadership training.

The supervisors did not include any of the above projects in its first-year allocation of funds but there is a possibility they may be included in allocation of the remaining $1.9 million.

The projects included in the first year's allocation are: Code Enforcement, Rehabilitation Plan, $28,000; Housing Assistance; Community Survey and Plan, $60,000; Housing Assistance Program Study, $15,000; Update of Housing and Community Development Plan, $70,000; Social Services Plan, $20,000; Transporation Study for Elderly and Handicapped, $8,110; Pilot Project, $65,000; Planning and Management, $75,000; and Contingency, $34,100.

Valley gets a quality burglar

"Pleasanton is a wealthy town and burglars know it," according to Detective Sgt. Ed Valin.

"We're getting a better class of burglar from out of town. He knows both parents work and the kids are off in school. He can sit and wait until everyone's gone to work, then — Bingo!"

Capt. "Doc" Blalock of the Livermore Police isn't playing semantic games when he refers to burglars as "intruders."

"They scare easily and overreact. They lay in wait and then it's assault and battery, or worse."

More than 50 percent of the rapes in the United States occur in the home.

Crime, all statistics show, is growing faster in the suburbs than in urban areas.

Police have driven professional burglars through peaceful tracts and had them pick the empty homes.

"They're neat and clean and out of the house in five minutes. We can't catch them in the act; they're too quick," one patrolman volunteered.

The rub is that suburban security: the umbilical warmth of "safe from the cities."

Combined with apathy, the virus is self serving.

After a recent armed robbery a neighbor told police she'd seen someone crawling through the shrubbery the day before the incident. Why didn't she report it to police?

"I didn't know who he was."

"People are afraid to get involved, or they're afraid of embarassment," according to Pleasanton's Capt. Nelson.

And they're greedy.

When meat prices skyrocketed, restaurant and home freezer burglaries jumped, too.

"Patrons" neither complained nor questioned meat sold off the backs of trucks, according to Blalock.

"Some of this stuff was prime beef, obviously wrapped for a restaurant.

"It's good old 'need and greed.'"

Someone approaches you with a color television for $75 saying he's getting divorced, or the baby's sick and she needs the money. No questions.

Times are tight and steaks shouldn't be that expensive anyway, so pilferage from markets increases.

"They're big enough," one can hear the rationalization, "and they've got insurance."

Insurance premiums, however, are a cost of doing business, and passed on to the consumer. We all pay.

Why are burglaries lower — in some cases non-existent — in older neighborhoods? The pattern is the same throughout the Valley.

There are old ties in older neighborhoods, according to police and deputies. People know their neighbors and care what goes on.

It's apparently more than simple longevity in a neighborhood, too. Attitudes of established neighborhoods are anything but apathetic.

Older homes have less access points and solid doors. Locks tend to be more prolific, too.

Police have experimented by sending plainclothes officers into different neighborhoods.

They'll cruise a block three or four times, stop and stare into someone's garage. No one notices them.

In older heighborhoods, though, residents will either will call police or, damning embarassment, ask the plainclothes patrol what it wants.

Alameda County Sheriff's deputies recently conducted two forums on preventing burglaries in businesses.

Foothill High work stalled

PLEASANTON — Because the coupons on the bonds were too big and would not fit into the County Treasurer's file box, the formality of awarding a bid on Foothill High Phase II construction has been stalled.

Assistant Superintendent for pusiness Services Doug Rose told an ired Amador Joint High School District Board Tuesday night that as a result county counsel recommended that an award not be made.

Rose said he learned the frustrating news at 4 p.m. Tuesday.

It is anticipated that as soon as the technicality is straightened out, another special board meeting will be set and the award and exchange of bonds for monies will be made.

This could be done as early as Thursday, Rose and Superintendent Bruce Newlin opined.

Total construction costs for the project are pegged at $2,006,766.

The net costs, after adding in furniture and equipment, contingencies and comes to $2,282,880.

In other business, an architectural agreement was reassigned Ron Martyn of Associated Architects.

Trustees also passed a slightly toned down resolution on collective bargaining, urging the legislature to fully inform the public on the full impact on the proposed measure. The resolution asked that the legislature reject all collective bargaining for public employes, legislation currently being considered.

Greenlight for SRV rezoning

A 1,315-home development in the San Ramon Valley is one step closer to reality.

The board of supervisors Tuesday gave unanimous approval to a rezoning which would permit the Sunrise Corporation Development of homes and a golf course.

The 461-acre parcel on the east side of the valley, north of Crow Canyon Road, was previously zoned for agriculture, light industry and controlled manufacturing.

Valley youths for PE revisions

Kevin Smith, a student at Granada High School, is one of a group of students who will be at the State Capitol today to help lobby in favor of SB16, a measure that revises physical education requirements.

Similar measures have failed in past years but the current one, authored by Sen. Arlen Gregorio-D(Pacifica), has received broad school board and citizens group support throughout the state.

The Amador Valley Joint High School District recently passed certain physical education exemptions in light of the pending legislation.

Specifically, students who are participating in interscholastic activities may request exemption from their P.E. classes. Such a request must be submitted to the student's counselor prior to the beginning of the semester in which the exemption is to occur.

There are four conditions for making a request; 1) Students must be an 11th or 12th grader, 2) The exemption is in effect only for the duration of the sport season, 3) The exempted student will be assigned to a physical education team and, if the student is discontinued from the sport for any reason, he must return to regular physical education activity, and 4) The committee to review exemptions will consider the applicant's citizenship, P.E. skill level, and need for released time.

A student may also be granted an exemption for the second half of the senior year, providing all other graduation requirements are met and the student can show a need for released time to the review committee. No credit is given for the exemption.

The third method for exemption covers students in the Regional Occupational Program. To qualify for ROP courses students, by law, must take four subjects at their home school, other than an ROP course. If there is a transportation hardship, the student can be exempt from P.E. that semester. No credit is given for the exemption.

Gregorio's bill generally would make it easier to avoid taking P.E., as long as the student can convince a department head or review committee.

A report to the state Board of Education last week claimed most California high school students and principals think 12th graders shouldn't have to take physical education classes. classes.

Malpractice suits hit one out of three doctors

One out of three Valley doctors can expect to be sued at some point in his life, if local trends reflect national statistics.

Like physicians everywhere, Valley doctors are watching the Legislature as it attempts to head off a malpractice insurance crisis by changing the California approach to malpractice suits as well as insurance. The flurry of activity comes in the wake of a recent attempt by Argonaut Insurance Co. of Menlo Park to get out of its eight - year contract with doctors in Alameda, Contra Costa and six other counties because the company says it can't afford the cost of the multimillion - dollar awards being made to patients who are suing on the grounds of malpractice.

Argonaut's announcement dramatically revealed what those in the medical profession have been complaining about for a long time. The occasional multi - million - dollar malpractice settlement and many more smaller, but still considerable awards can wipe out an insurance company unless they charge rates so high no doctor wants to pay them and no patient can afford the added cost tacked onto his bill.

At the same time, nobody dares to practice without the insurance, which is now costing doctors in high - risk fields more than $5,000 a year and which would go up to $20,600 if Argonaut is allowed to charge what the company is asking for.

Assemblyman Alister McAlister (D - San Jose) Monday introduced legislation creating the California Medical Malpractice Underwriting Association.

The insurance pool proposed by the San Jose state legislator would include all liability insurance companies in California, who would provide medical malpractice insurance to all California physicians.

That would take the burden away from Argonaut, one of the four carriers in the state offering malpractice insurance. "Many insurers throughout the country have either withdrawn entirely from the field or have announced their intention to do so," McAlister said in announcing his bill.

"The rates would be set to guarantee that the Association would be self - supporting. Excess premiums would be returned pro rata to the physicians."

Meanwhile, trial lawyers, who have been blamed for setting up the system to make a killing when they negotiate a large malpractice settlement, have called for an immediate investigation and report to the public by the State Insurance Department.

The 5,100 - member trial bar's Board of Governors unanimously issued their demand at a weekend meeting in San Francisco: "This invesitgation should determine and disclose the cause of this current problem, whether it be abuses by insurance companies or by doctors themselves, and should propose immediate solutions to include state regulation of insurance rates, if necessary."

Retired physician Robert McLennan, an assemblyman, says limits on the amount of damages to be awarded should be set by law. He has also suggested a preliminary review system for the courts to determine whether a suit is worthy of going through the costly and lengthy court proceeding.

Meanwhile, the legal, medical and insurance professions have until May 1 to get their differences ironed out. That's the date Argonaut has threatened either to quadruple or to cut off insurance to all physicians in Northern California.

Pleasanton chamber supports Apperson

William Apperson's fight to convert part of his Sunol ranch to a commercial recreation center has gained the support of the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce, along with a pledge of legal action to help further that project.

Supporting action first framed by the chamber's board of directors, the full business group voted without dissent on Tuesday to express its sympathy with the Diamond A Ranch venture. The plea for community interest "in preserving each property owner's rights" was advanced by Dagmar Fulton, president of Social, Economic and Environmental Concerns Committee (SEEC) which Mrs. Fulton says "is dedicated to gaining fair and equal rights for every citizen."

SEEC will also file a "friend of the court" action in support of Apperson, who is being challenged by a consortium of environmentalist groups which wants to overturn county approval given the Apperson dude ranch. The development would be near the Sunol Valley Regional Park and what the East Bay Regional Park District claims is "a wilderness area."

"How can it be a wilderness when that land has been ranched for 100 years," Mrs. Fulton asserted.

Bicentennial needs business volunteers Futch tells Army

PLEASANTON — An invitation for local business houses to "participate in the community's bicentennial program" has been issued by the chairman of that local venture.

Ken Mercer appeared before a chamber of commerce Tuesday luncheon meeting to outline briefly the Pleasanton Bicentennial Committee's program that could cost well in excess of $15,000, and run through July of 1976. Mercer noted that "we invite the participation of local stores and business houses in selling bicentennial flags and other items, which will be the source for most of our operating funds." Mercer suggested that the chamber "might wish to create a bicentennial sub committee" which could then work with the full community panel in developing programs, pageants and projects to be undertaken during the next 18 months.

On that same Tuesday agenda the chamber members were treated to a spirited preview of the "Dames At Sea" musical which will be presented for three weekends during March under the sponsorship of the Pleasanton Recreation Department. Members from that cast performed some of the lively numbers from that production.

Chamber president Ben Fernandez announced that the board of directors is exploring publication of a local directory and business guide.

Supes approve more preserves

Alamda County Bureau

OAKLAND — The Alameda County Board of Supervisors approved placing more than 650 acres in the valley area into agricultural preserves Tuesday morning.

Only one of the applications, that of Castlewood Country Club to add the 127-acre upper golf course to an existing preserve, was not approved unanimously. Supervisor Tom Bates said he could not approve agricultural preserve status "for a private golf course".

The other applications, all approved unanimously, were: Evelyn M. Frick, 55.11 acres, on Laughlin Road north of Interstate 580; Charles Graham and Anna Nissen, 134 acres located between First Stret and the Western Pacific tracks adjacent to Livermore; Thuel V. Schuhart, 80 acres atop Pleasanton Ridge adjacent to Hayward; Charles H. and Helen M. Knowles, 80 acres east of Mines Road; Richard S. Warren, 120 acres east of Cull Road and norther of Crow Canyon Road; and Richard and Maureen Rifkind, 60 acres, also east of Cull Road and north of Crow Canyon Road.

FUTURE HEALTH PLANNING

The supervisors debated various geographic grouping alternatives for future health planning and continued the matter until March 11 for a decision.

Under the terms of the National Health Planning and Resources Development Act of 1974, counties must recommend to the state geographic groupings for future health planning. The secretary of the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare will make the final decisions.

The county has basically four alternatives: to apply for a waiver for just Alameda County; to combine with Contra Costa County; to combine with the four other counties (San Francisco, Contra Costa, Marin and San Mateo) which constitute the San Francisco-Oakland Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area; or to become a part of a nine-county Bay Area-wide federation.

Several of the supervisors, most notably Tom Bates, favored combining with Contra Costa County for health planning purposes to maintain the maximum amount of local control.

Dr. Dan Goodrich, vice chairman of the Alameda County Comprehensive Health Planning Council, urged the supervisors to recommend designation of the entire nine-county Bay Area as the most effective health planning unit.

Goodrich said the county CHPC had endorsed that option because it has worked in the past — there are presently nine county Comprehensive Health Planning Councils operating under the umbrella of a Bay Area CHPC. Goodrich also noted there is a great deal of "crossing of county lines" in health care at present and added that option has a better chance of being approved since the federal government would like to limit regional health planning councils to 200 nationwide.

The board asked staff to prepare a list of pros and cons for each alternative and to find out what other counites in the Bay Area are planning prior to the March 11 meeting.

REORGANIZATION

The board also put into motion a reorganization of the Human Resources Agency by approving four staff recommendations.

They include: designation of James Callahan as Acting Direc-tor of the HRA; initiation of discussions of the proposed reorganization with the various commissions; and recruitment of a Director of Social Services.

The reorganization would go into effect July 1.

Request for differential again before Zone 7 board

PLEASANTON — Zone 7's Board of Directors will be confronted Wednesday night by yet another request by the Pleasanton City Council to reconsider the Zone's differential in water rates charged Pleasanton and other Valley cities.

Zone 7, supplier of two-thirds of the Valley's water, bases connection fees on meter size. Pleasanton in 1972 changed from five-eights inch to three-quarters-inch meters to provide higher water pressure to residents, but argues the larger meters cause no increase in water use.

Zone 7 has proposed new connection fees of $650 for five-eights inch and $975 for three-quarter inch meters, each up 45 percent from the previous $450 and $675 fees.

Pleasanton charges an additional $110 for five-eights inch (now obsolete) and $152 for three-quarters inch meters.

Additionally, the city charges Zone 7 with having collected some $192,000 in excess connection fees since the 1972 change, and has considered withholding the amount on future connections until the sum is made up.

Staff for the water district is expected to recommend a review of Pleasanton's written case be undertaken by the water committee.

The meeting convenes at Pleasanton Justice Court, 39 W. Angela St., 8 p.m., Wednesday.

G.E. Vallecitos

It's business as usual

Since 1956 the power resource people love to hate has been quietly and efficiently performing in the Valley for nearly 18 years now, and the only noticeable effect is a plume of white steam rising against the mountains in the background.

The power resource is nuclear fission and the plant is of course the General Electric Vallecitos facility that now houses the GE Test Reactor (GETR, pronounced Gee-ter) and originally was the site of the first private boiling water reactor in the United States.

That reactor, which ran from 1957-1963, also supplied Pacific Gas and Electric with 5000 kilowatts of power, making PG&E the first utility to employ nuclear power over its network in the nation.

Today, Vallecitos is not so much at the forefront of technology. GETR is used for two main purposes — to run tests on the nuclear power plant components that GE scientists devise and also to produce radioactive isotopes of common elements for use in medicine.

The main product of the radioisotope program is molybdenum 99, which is sold to pharmaceutical supply houses throughout the nation.

Molybdenum 99 is formed by bombarding normal molybdenum atoms with neutrons produced by the reactor at Vallecitos. That radioactive isotope is then fixed to an aluminum oxide column where it begins to decay. The end product is technisium 99, which is used by the body.

However, molybdenum 99 is harmful to humans, so it is necessary to separate the parent atom from the technisium. That is done by having the doctor at the hospital or clinic run a saline solution over the column of aluminum oxide; the technisium 99 washes off while the molybdenum 99 remains.

Then the technisium is injected into the body where it will travel to the brain and collect in cancers and tumors in that area of the body. Then, a radiograph can be taken that will show the exact size and location of the brain tumor, if any.

Obviously, this process is tremendously beneficial and over two million such radiographs were taken last year using technisium 99.

Overall, radioactive isotope tests were made on over three million patients last year and GETR produces many other isotopes aside from molybdenum 99. Such natural rarities as iridium 192, carbon 14, tin 113, ytterbium 169, chromium 36 and thulium 176 are made and sold by GE.

However, the research aspect at Vallecitos is also quite important. GE sells reactors to public utilities and the components are tested and retested under working conditions through the use of GETR. There is space for 47 different experiments to be run at one time at Vallecitos and its high neutron flux allows for considerable variability in conditions.

One aspect of nuclear safety that has come under fire from critics of the industry is the Emergency Core Cooling Systems (ECCS), which is designed to cool the fuel core of the reactor if the water that normally cools it should escape.

Researchers at Vallecitos have devised a core spray system that will pump over 10,000 gallons of water a minute into the interior of the reactor within 30 seconds of a coolant loss. The system is designed to supply three times the amount of water that scientists have calculated is necessary to keep the very hot fuel core from melting.

And despite the cries of environmentalists who claims that nuclear power is the first step on the road to polluting and despoiling the world, it is instructive to note that the only emissions from the plant visible to Valley residents are plumes of pure, uncontaminated water vapor.

Burglary victims

Four businesses sent representatives to the second, four-hour presentation.

Popular stupidity must be added to the accessories of any burglar's bag.

How many quick trips to the store leaving the garage open before a home is hit?

Locks are treated with indifference, as though they won't keep a burglar out.

According to police they at least keep the honest folks honest, and perhaps will delay a burglar long enough for you or a neighbor to phone police and prepare yourselves.

Guns? They're more often turned on victims than burglars. They're also easy to fence.

Burglars don't need accomplices with elaborate diversions, either. We the people provide enough.

Police are harangued constantly by citizens to respond to noisy stereos, barking dogs, speeders, and disputes with neighbors.

Adding this to responses for accidents, overdoses, and family squabbles cuts down significantly on patrol activity.

Some departments won't respond to domestic complaints, but tell the party to come in and fill out a form. All Valley police, however, claim they respond to all complaints.

A controversial study in Kansas City allegedly shows patrols don't curb crime, but police point to Los Angeles where the department claims it "moves" crime to different areas by increasing patrols.

In casing a house a burglar will quite often ring the doorbell of a darkened home and wait for response. Should someone answer the bell, the foiled thief simply asks for "Mr. Smith."

Neighbors, who should know there is no "Mr. Smith" in the area, simply shrug it off.

Police told of the woman who was in the shower when the bell rang, and responded in bathrobe to an empty door. She found a young man out back "looking for a ball" in her yard.

"She actually got on her hands and knees and helped this guy look for the 'ball,'" police said. "She didn't become suspicious until she saw the pry marks on the back window."

The latest police effort toward curbing the nationally-climbing burglary rate is property identification.

Burglars don't shrug off identifiable items as simple inconvenience. That California driver's license number stenciled on valuables is the difference between conviction and freedom, according to police.

Valin knows of burglars who won't touch a home whose valuables are marked.

Other departments tell of cars stopped leaving town with merchandise in the back seat.

"It's my brother-in-law's," doesn't work if the items can be traced to a local homeowner, perhaps away for the weekend.

Both Pleasanton and Livermore Police Departments currently are promoting the S.T.E.P. (Strategic Team Enforcement Program) in which an electric stencil gun may be borrowed from the department for marking valuables. Those which are too small to be marked should be photographed, police say.

Serial numbers from watches, cameras, and weapons should be recorded and not kept with the valuables.

Burglars last year stole a series of negotiable securities from a Valley resident who kept the serial numbers with the securities.

New adult class attracts gamut of craft lovers

By EDNA WEHRSDORFER

Sounds of hammering drown out the voices while students are intensely involved in cutting leather, measuring and spacing out designs, tooling patterns in the leather or dyeing the nearly finished product.

"I've always wanted to decorate my horse tack," declares truck driver Darrell Hallock, who sews leather chaps, vests and visors on a heavy-duty sewing machine. He was never able to add designs until he enrolled in the leathercraft class.

Instructor Barbara Harm calls it an introductory course, and tries to keep its content as flexible as possible.

Most students are interested in making belts, wallets, purses, sandals and clogs. All but one work in latigo, the leather most familiar to Ms. Harm.

"It's oil-tanned and doesn't accept water," she explains. "A design is stamped in it without wetting it." Once the design is complete, the pieces are dyed to bring the pattern out.

Eighteen-year-old Harold Jones, a Livermore High School student, has been working in leather for three years, having begun leathercraft in his native Louisiana. He is taking the course for credit.

Lacing a billfold together, Hal has already completed an intricate design on the exterior. He is the only student to have used wet oak, tanned or live oak leather, which requires a different designing process.

"You wet the leather and trace the pattern over it," Hal explains in a soft southern accent. "You cut with a knife and you bevel to get the raised design."

Ms. Harm has tried to keep the list of tools required simple, at a cost of about $20. The list includes a rotary punch, four-way utility knife, safety bevelers, rawhide mallet, strip ease, poundo board and stamping tools.

A second list contains items you might find around the house. Ruler, dye, dye brush, curnauba cream, plastic gloves, wool dauber and old T-shirt. According to the instructor, curnauba is a finishing cream applied after dying to polish and seal the latigo leather against water.

The teacher has scraps for practice, and some of the students buy extra long belt lenghts, cutting a bit off for experimentation.

Students are warned: "Measure your waist where you're going to wear your belt; if you're going to wear it at the hips, measure that area. To the measurement add 10 inches."

Ms. Harm is an accredited secondary-education teacher who taught eight years before she moved to Livermore in August. For the past three years she introduced leathercraft to art classes.

"I originally got involved in leather because I thought it was a good thing to teach," she explains. "I've made some items for myself and for gifts, but I haven't sold anything." She has sold jewelry which she designs in the lost-wax casting process for gold and silver.

Ms. Harm's main attention is directed to those working with leather for the first time. She helps each student individually.

"They need more help, as they are afraid of making mistakes, since the leather is expensive.

"For a student not making his own money, it's expensive. In day school students would only pay for the leather, but at the night class they must also pay for some of their own tools," says Barbara. She has some high school students taking the course for credit.

Assistance is given to beginners cutting out leather from a hide stretched out over a long table. Student Rhea Bartlett watches closely. She's taking the course with a neighbor, June Hood.

"June suggested we take the course, and here we are," she quips. "It's something different." Both have made sandals and belts.

Reactions from other students of the leathercraft course:

"I've always taken adult courses," comments housewife Bonnie Pratt. "Browsing over the program, this appealed to me."

"I just wanted something to do since I was laid off my job," explains young Julie Forbord. Will it turn into a hobby for her? "After spending money for the tools, I think it will."

Kathy Curl, busy making clogs says, "It looked like an interesting class, and it was also a new class."

Granada High School student Debbie Vandergift confesses, "I've always wanted to get into something like this." She plans making a purse and candleholder.

Bruce Nevin, Sandia electronics employee offers, "My daughter wanted a leathercraft set for Christmas, and got it. Neither my wife nor I knew anything about it, so I decided to take the course. I'm probably getting a lot more out of it than she is.

"I've been looking for a nice little hobby I can work on from time to time," Nevin adds before returning to the task of measuring the space for his latest design. "Right now this looks real promising."

Andre is coming

For the first time in three years, professional wrestling returns to the Alameda County Fairgrounds in Pleasanton Saturday night.

And it's coming back in a big way.

Antioch promoter Louie Miller is bringing in 7-4, 424 Andre the Giant, part of the 18-man battle royal at the Cow Palace last weekend.

Andre will wrestle two opponents simultaneously, Kurt Von Brauner, and Rick Hunter, in a one hour main event.

In the other half of the double-main, world tag-team champions Pat Patterson and Peter Maivia will face Moondog Mayne and Karl Von Brauner.

In other matches, Raul Mata faces Frank Valois, and Angelo Mosca faces Manuel Cruz.

Tickets will be priced at $4 for ringside, $3 general admission. Advance tickets are on sale at the Wagon Wheel and Dolores' Restaurant, both on Main St. in Pleasanton, and at the Village Canteen in Livermore.

The Fairgrounds box office will open at 4 p.m. Saturday, and the first match begins at 8:30.

Granada fires on Amador

Shocking, stunning, call it what you like.

But when the fans filed out of Granada High's gym the scoreboard blared Granada 74, Amador Valley, 58.

"It was a great win" sighed Granada coach Pat Fracisco. "All I asked was that the team be healthy, and I thought we could give them a game."

The defeat cost Amador a chance to wrap up a second straight EBAL title. Second place Dublin also lost last night. It was Amador's first league loss in 20 games. For Granada, the triumph boosted its record to 6-3. The Dons are 7-1.

Joey Wujek and Rich Guttierrez, both of whom started on the bench, keyed the Mat win.

Wujek, 6-4 sophomore forward, hit on two consecutive 10-foot jump shots to pull Granada from a 37-37 tie into a 41-37 lead, one the Mats never relinquished.

Guttierrez meanwhile, tallied nine points in the frantic fourth quarter. Two on drives through the suprisingly porous Amador defense.

Mike Fracisco hit on 13 of 15 free throws to aid Granada.

For Amador, 6-7 senior Andy Finn turned in a gutsy effort, but it wasn't enough. Finn scored 20 points, seven in the fourth quarter, when he single handedly tried to bring Amador back.

Surging for 16 second-quarter points the Dons managed to open up a slim, 35-33 halftime lead.

Granada came out high as a kite and opened up a 21-19 first quarter lead.

Fracisco led the Matador surge with six of six free throws. Rich Guttierrez chipped in four more points during that span, on two breakaway lay-ins.

Finn, who dominated the boards, tallied 11 points in the first quarter. He was held scoreless in the second period however.

The Dons' Hall helped Amador open an 8-4 lead early. Hall hit a three-point play and connected on three of four free throws to give the Dons a temporary lead.

It took Amador two overtimes to dispose of Granada, 70-62 in junior varsity action.

Tony Bartolini hit a 25-foot jump shot as the buzzer sounded to send the game into the first extra period.

The Dons' Chris DePrater almost pulled the game out in the first overtime when his drive in and out at the horn.

Jeff Evert led all scorers with 25 points. The pons' John Sevo was next with 21. Bartolini added 17 more for the Matadors, while Jim Yackley and Keith VanNorden combined for 20 more for Amador.

Cowboys hang Gaels

Ted Wood's lay-in following a loose-ball recovery put Livermore High ahead to stay with 10 seconds left in the game last night, and the Cowboys edged Dublin 68-67.

The loss all but eliminated the Gaels from EBAL title contention.

Livermore trailed most of the game, but took the lead with 3:40 to play in the third quarter, 41-40, when Rich Gross, who later suffered a knee injury, canned a jumper.

During the fourth period the Gaels, with Troy Roberson hitting 11 of his 26 points (high for Dublin) had numerous opportunities to tie the score, or go ahead. Turnovers, however, and offensive fouls, handed the ball back to Livermore.

Ed St. Clair provided nearly two-thirds of the Cowboy offense, scorching the cords for 41 points.

Ray Roberson gave the Roberson family a total of 43 points as he scored 17.

Two Livermore players other than St. Clair reached double Wood scored 14, and center Curt Groth scored 10.

The game was highlighted by several stellar defensive plays, including key shot blocks by St. Clair.

Dublin began the game as though it intended to totally snow the Cowboys under. The Gaels turned a 17-2 start into an 18-7 lead after one quarter, as only St. Clair could tally for Livermore.

St. Clair scored Livermore's first 15 points, with Ted Wood breaking the string on a 14-foot jumper at 5:03 of the second period.

The Livermore forward out-scored Dublin, 13-5, over the span of four minutes sandwhiched around the first quarter break. That kept the Cowboys in the game.

Turnovers, which had benefited Dublin in the opening quarter, 7-2, turned around in the second, as the Gaels eagerness produced some bad side effects. The Gaels were still not burned for as many baskets off exchanges as the Cowboys had been. Livermore coughed up six scores on mistakes, Dublin, four.

In the junior varsity contest, Livermore paced itself well, scoring 21 points in each half, to defeat Dublin, 42-39.

Both clubs had balanced scoring.

Tom Compton hit 10 points to lead the Cowboys, and teammate Martin Payne was a close second with nine.

For Dublin, Jim Boulware hit 11, and Rich Barnes and R ck Wallis chipped in nine apiece.

Pokes survive late Dublin charge, 50-46

Dublin High missed an opportunity to tie in the final half minute, and Livermore held on for a 50-46 EBAL freshman basketball victory yesterday in Dublin.

The Cowboys retained their share of first place in the league with a 10-2 record. Co - leader Granada was playing at home against Amador yesterday.

The Gaels jumped off to a 10-4 lead after one quarter, but were out-scored, 38-20 in the next two periods.

Dublin charged again in the fourth quarter, and trailed by just two with 30 seconds left. But the Gaels missed the tying shot, the Cowboys converted another field goal, and the game was over.

"We should have waited for a good shot," said Dublin coach John Nix. "But we forced the ball, and that was it. Either team could have had it."

Dublin's Jeff Barnes was the scoring leader with 22 points, and nearly the entire offense for the Gaels. No other Dublin shooter had more than four points.

For the first place Cowboys, Dick Patterson pumped in 14 points, and Rick Yawornisky, eight. John Bacaleda and Jim Rogers each had seven points, John Farfan and Mark Johannsen, six apiece.

Clovers 2nd at tourney

The under-16 Dublin Clovers finished second last weekend in the under-18 division of the Santa Rosa Washington's Birthday Girls Soccer Tournament.

The Clovers won five games, one with just 10 players, and lost to the Hurricanes in their bid for a championship.

The Clovers defeated the Cactus Stars, 5-2, the Wildwood Weeds, 10-2, the Roadrunners, 4-2, the Tiger Lilies, 10,3, and San Ramon, 3-1.

They lost to the Hurricanes, 7-2.

Playing for Dublin were Marge Downing, Kathy Williams, Gina Thomas, Clare Allen, Cheryl Thompson, Linda Finco, Janie Pappas, Jessie Martin, Cindy Scott, Aaron Healy and Pam Braga.

The scrappy Dublin Dynamites split four games in the Santa Rosa Tournament, losing two games by only one goal each.

The Dynamites crushed Fresno 7-0, thanks to the fine defense of Lynette Lescano, and Kim Garza's five saves. Goals went to Anita Vierra, Terry Gonsalves, Rene Moss, Ann Osbeck, Mary Gaynor, Shelley Moss and Sheri Snyder.

Rene Moss exploded for five goals as the Dynamites thumped the San Ramon Skylarks, 5-1. Garza was outstanding with 10 saves. Kim Iverson, Joanna Halpin and Sheri Snyder played well for Dublin.

Rene scored two more goals against Concord, but Dublin dropped a 3-2 decision. Garza came up with six saves in this contest.

Outstanding players included Joanna Halpin, Mary Gaynor, Terry Gonsalves, Seri Synder, Shelley Moss and Deanna Smith.

In the only other contest, Livermore dropped the Dynamites, 2-1, despite a Rene Moss goal on Shelley Moss' assist. Garza again was outstanding with 10 saves.

Anna Marie Scheibli, Lynette Lezcano, Kim Iverson, Deanna Smith, Sheri Snyder and Ann Osbeck played well.

Celtics slip by Lakers

Overcoming a five - point fourth quarter deficit, the Celtics nipped the Lakers, 20-19, in a senior A contest of the Pleasanton Police Athletic Athletic League basketball League basketball program.

Tom Lopiccolo and Dennis Miller led the winners with six and four points. Dean Shotwell and Greg Lewis each had eight.

The Trotters rolled over the Warriors, 32-14, with nine players scoring. Steve Bozhamer had six points, and Mark Gaberson, four. Rob Santos and Tony Garcia paced the Warriors.

A full-court press, and overall height advantage carried the P-Town Pros to a 61-16 win over the Bucks. John Briggs and Greg Lund carried the Pros.

In the senior B division, the Bullets topped the Celtics, 22-15. Mark Farrell scored 11 points, and Glen Gunter and Keith Nelson added six and three points. LeRoy Ganpe paced the Celts, along with Dan Bromberg, Neal Fornaciaro and Larry Allen.

The Sonics crushed the Braves, 25-12, with Eric Houston pouring in 16 points. Randy McNatt scored six, Jef Freeman, four and Jim Puertas, two, for the Braves.

The Knicks outlasted the Warriors, 16-12, as center Rich Moran scored 10 points. Guard Roy Cobb added four, and Craig Hirst, two. Jeff Richards and Jon Re played well for the losers.

The Lakers crushed the Gunners in the junior division, 30-15. Paul Crumm scored eight for the losers, and Mark Moyers had three.

Linda Silva honored

For the fourth time this school year, a woman has been honored by the East Bay Prep Writers Association as its weekly Flecto Sports Award winner.

The latest recipient of the laurel is Monte Vista High freshman basketball player Linda Silva, holder of the school girls' single-game scoring record.

She is joined this week by Terry Markou of Pacific High, the Alameda County winner of the award, presented weekly by the EBPWA and Flecto of Oakland.

To earn her award, Monte Vista's tiny guard scored 15 points in a 48-38 upset victory over then East Bay Athletic League-leading Livermore High.

She scored her team's initial 12 fourth-quarter points to almost single-handedly wrap up the triumph for the Mustang girls, now in first place with two games to go.

Her 15 marked the fourth consecutive game she's gone into double figures. It was eight short of the 23 school-record Silva holds.

Markou, one of California's premier high-school wrestlers, recorded four pins in two minutes and 11 seconds at the Alameda County Athletic League championships last week.

His first victory came in 11 seconds, the second in 17, and the third in 25. He had to wait over a minute in the final before getting the fourth, because his opponent wisely tried to stay out of his grasp.

Hall tells WBA to halt season

A move is underfoot to bring the Western Basketball Association season to a premature, merciful halt.

The five remaining teams may lop off the remaining month of the season, and forge ahead with playoffs. Those would involve four of the league's five teams.

Martinez Muir coach and general manager Dale Hall is pushing the call for an immediate shutdown, to commence following this weekend's round of games.

All of the WBA franchises are failing miserably at the gate, and Hall says to call it quits now only makes sense.

"It's costing me my bleep just to open the doors," he says.

The WBA is ending its first season as a professional basketball league with a wimper. The five surviving owners (San Mateo owner Jerry Hamilton pulled out in January)keep the doors open to nurture hopes for a minor league contract with the NBA. If that possibility did not exist, the league might be defunct already.

Now Hall, who is a pioneer in the WBA, suggests the league bosses fold their tents in the interests of savings. They must wait until summer to learn if the NBA agrees to adoption.

"All we're doing is costing me money by playing," Hall says. "And I don't want to cost anybody else any money.

"I've talked to a couple of people, including Don Fracchia (Tri-Valley Warrior owner), and they seem hot to do this. We'd play this weekend, then go-head with the playoffs."

Buccaneers throttle Roans in Al Caffodio

The San Ramon Buccaneers received three first half goals from Chris Plain, and defeated the Mustang Roans, 7-0, in Al Caffodio soccer last weekend.

David Hoole, Todd Clarke, Marc Lieng and Jeff Johnson also scored for the winners.

Teammate Sean Bryant was a defensive standout at halfback. Roan goalie Dave Weldon had 10 saves.

The Tigers defeated the Ballistic Avengers, 1-0, on Brian Culp's goal 13 minutes into the first half. T. J. Gibbons assisted.

Fullback Jeff Davis, and halfbacks Steve Colvard, Andy Scholl, and Matthew Gibson were defnsive standouts. David Beeler, Tom Tringali also played well.

For the Avengers, Jim Waldie and Ryan Kurtz were defensive standouts.

The San Ramon Crusaders survived a Russell Sterrit goal one minute into the match to defeat the Livermore Apollos, 2-1. Mike Majors and Mark Giovanetti scored goals for the Crusaders, and Majors added an assist. Randy Smith aided the winners with 10 saves. Top defensive players included Scott Smith, Mike Barrows and Mike Hall. David Coble and Matt Clarke keyed the offense. Mike Robasio had 11 saves for the Appollos.

The Spitfires rolled over the Newark Chargers, 7-0, with Paul Deiro scoring twice. Kirk Bowles, Mike York, Toby Macfarlane, Todd Warrington and Lyn Bantley all scored once. Tod Lemos had six saves.

Falcon JV's rip Wolves

Foothill High School continues to challenge for an EBAL girls junior varsity basketball title with the critical part of the league schedule coming up.

The Falcons trounced San Ramon yesterday, 27-10, as a prelude to a showdown Thursday with rival California.

The Grizzlies are one of the other bidders for the EBAL title.

Foothill won yesterday with Thela Lewis pumping in 12 points on five field goals and a pair of free throws. It was her finest performance of the season, praised coach Vickie Dolsby.

Foothill led just 9-4 at halftime, then the Falcons blew things open with an 18 point second half.

Third period binge carries Sonics past Bucks, 20-17

The Sonics out-scored the Bucks, 6-2 in the third period, and that proved to be the difference in a 20-17 Dublin Youth Basketball Association contest last week with the Bucks.

Don Galli scored eight points for the Sonics, Steve McDonald, six, and Tom Rollins, four.

For the Bucks, Dan Bynum had seven points, Sean Collins, six, and Steve McFarland, four.

The Suns dimmed the Blazers, 26-8, with Bill Callender and John Hodson scoring eight points each. The Blazers were shut out in the first and fourth periods.

The Capitols drubbed the Lakers, 34-16, paced by Steve Bustamente's 10 points. Russell Herrocks added eight. For the Lakers, John Berejka scored six points, and Bryan Matthews, four.

Woody scales new heighth

Woody Witkowski begins to resemble a broken record, with the tune growing and growing in stature.

For about the zillionth time this winter bowling season, Witkowski was the top competitor at Granada Bowl last week. And his performance was one of the tops in years at the Livermore lanes, a 730 three - game series.

Witkowski rolled games of 247-227, then hit eight consecutive strikes in the third game for a 256.

Over the last two weeks, Woody has posted series of 642, 669, 676, 661 and 667, before blasting the 700 barrier last week.

Witkowski's average is a cool, 177.

His incredible performance dimmed the efforts of Jay Dolis, who rolled games of 235-234 and 211 for a 680 series. Jeff Morrison rolled a fine 648 series, and Kaz Plis, 632. Joe Lipera and Ralph Carter each checked in at 614.

On the rise

Lance Corporal James Ransome of Livermore (right) receives congratulations from Livermore Mayor Bob Pritchard and Sergeant David Yeakel for his excellent performance at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot and at Camp Pendleton in San Diego. Ransome was awarded a wristwatch and a dress blue uniform for his achievements. He is presently assigned with the 23rd Marines, based in Concord.

Waiting for that "go" signal are David Drickson, Gary Eaton, John Sherwood and David Behiel participants of the Cub Scout Pinewood Derby held on Sunday at Dublin High School. Sherwood placed first in the finals, Eaton came in second, Erickson third and Behiel took fourth place.

Anxiously waiting for those "Derbies" to come down the race trace.

Murder for hire jury shut out

The jury in the murder-for-hire trial of two Bay Area men was kept out of the courtroom Tuesday morning while attorneys reviewed telephone records with the presiding judge.

Robert Conover, 37, of Pleasanton and Fred J. McClelland, 30, of Concord, are being tried on murder charges in Contra Costa Superior Court in Martinez.

They are accused in the slaying of Natha Jean Harding, 47, of Colusa. The victim was shot to death last May 14 as she drove along a Yolo County road, according to police.

The trial had been in recess since last Thursday but the jury was scheduled to be in the courtroom Tuesday afternoon, according to reports.

The dead woman's husband, Harry N. Harding, 55, has pleaded innocent to charges that he hired Conover and McClelland to kill his wife of 25 years.

Local man faces rape-kidnap charges

A Dublin man, charged with two counts of rape and kidnap in Lafayette last November, has pleaded innocent to the charges in Walnut Creek Municipal Court.

Bruce George Bryan, 29, of 7005 Tory Court, will appear in Municipal Court again March 10, for a preliminary hearing to determine whether he should be held for trial in Superior Court.

The accused, a telephone company employe, was arrested last month near Walnut Creek by Contra Costa Sheriff's detectives who accused him of kidnaping and raping two hitchhiking Lafayette high school girls last November.

Bryan is also charged with one count of assult with intent to commit a felony, involving the attack on a 25-year-old Lafayette woman who was jogging near El Nido Ranch Road last month.

The victim reportedly told police she was forced into a brown sedan and was driven around for awhile then released unharmed except for a minor scalp wound received during a struggle with her armed abductor.

How to label your Assembly candidate

Let's see now. We are supposed to reject Floyd Mori because he's "more of a Republican than a Democrat," even though this valley is something of "a Republican stronghold." Furthermore, we must be suspect of that endorsement given Mr. Mori by the Southern Alameda County Board of Realtors, while at the same time recognizing that Mr. Puccio's qualifications as a realtor "have given him valuable reference and contacts to assist him in making intelligent decisions in Sacramento."

Ignoring for a moment that this is a valley deeply committed to home and family, we should be suspicious of Floyd Mori's "rather strong attachment" to his church and his community, choosing instead a Castro Valley resident who maintains his family in a Sierra foothills' abode for much of the week. (please note that this same arrangement by Supervisor John D. Murphy once qualified that county servant for impeachment, by these same designers of public mores.)

As a fulltime college instructor financially free of any attachment to builders and land speculators, Mori must still be branded as "representing the landed interests," while his opponent, the realtor - appraiser - instructor, now takes on the cloak of "an environmental champion." The mayor of Pleasanton must be denied even valley support because he is a "hometown boy" who concentrates on the needs of our cities and villages, while ignoring "the great environmental issues" which must overshadow even such mundane matters as economic survival.

If you are still with us, then perhaps this quick summation of the two 15th Assembly District candidates might be helpful on the eve of that March 4 election:

If you really want to serve this valley and its pressing needs, then vote for a Castro Valley resident who maintains his real domicile in another county;

If you would stamp down developers and stamp out growth, then choose a lifetime realtor and land appraiser over a fulltime teacher of economics;

If you are a good Democrat, then you will support the Castro Valley Republican "because he's more liberal," but on the other hand, if you are a valley conservative, you will still vote for "the only Republican on the ticket."

These are the reasons set forth by those who see in Guy Puccio a champion of civil, environmental and property rights, while finding in Floyd Mori a strange blending of "political conflicts." The careful citizen might wonder just what it is that this "hometown boy" has done to earn the ire of "the liberals." We might also strive to unravel their rationale, if indeed there was anything rational about the anti - Mori campaign.

A reasonable person might simply conclude that Floyd Mori is an intelligent young man less interested in partisan loyalty than he is in governmental effectiveness, more concerned with principle than he is with politics. He also managed to stay clear of any unbreakable alliance with his party or his own city, with the landed interests or the environmental diehards. That is why no special interest group has a kind word to say about candidate Mori. And that is why he will make a particularly effective representative in Sacramento for the 15th Assembly District.

We don't know if chamber, city or Radio KNBR people are aware, but there's a major south county event firmly rooted in that May 3-4 weekend they were eying for another "Let The Good Times Roll" parade. It's the annual Hayward Rodeo at Rowell Ranch in Eden Canyon. The two-day event has been a fixture for something like half a century. Also, there's the annual rodeo parade on Friday night, May 2 in Hayward. We know of a few thousand people from this side of the "hill" who wouldn't miss the rodeo for anything else this side of Cheyenne.

Thursday marks the opening round of school board candidates nights with the Amador Valley Teachers Assn. hosting the five Pleasanton aspirants beginning at 4 p.m. at the Pleasanton Hotel.

While the program is especially for the district's teachers, I'm sure parents and other concerned taxpayers won't be turned away. Just so we all know, the candidates are, in alphabetical order, Betty Nostrand, Jack Pearson, Joe Schwab, Dr. Raymond Serafin and Alfred Thome. Two are to be elected.

Speaking of elections, pals of Bill Herlihy and Ed Kinney might ask that we all cool the "Hi there Mayor Herlihy (or Mayor Kinney)" jawing until after the 15th Assembly District runoff between Floyd Mori and Guy Puccio. If, by slim chance, things don't pan out, a lot of people are going to have egg on their face.

And would somebody pass a towel, please!

Letters to The Editor

Editor, The Times:

Since the Livermore City Council has refused to acknowledge a petition signed by over three thousand (3,000) registered voters, just who does the City Council of Livermore represent? Next year is election year — but perhaps they already see the handwriting on the wall, and will not run again. Perhaps Livermore will have government of the people, by the people, and for the people. Perhaps the SPIRIT OF 76 will inspire another Boston Tea Party, and save us from the tyranny of Underpass Taxation Without Representation.

The City Council thinks that the underpass project will upgrade the city. Everything so far has degraded our city Small business has been forced to close. Others are losing business daily. People have lost their homes; others have been forced to move to a substandard area, and will have to move again. Some left the country. BART will be pushed farther away, after we have paid for it for over a decade. Is this what our city council calls upgrading our city?

Perhaps Mr. Geldermann does have the answer: A NEW city . . .a COMPETITIVE city government . . .with the BART train going right through Geldertown.

Special Ed. funding

A decision is imminent on a south county school district consortium's application for $30,000 in Special Education funds.

The application to the State Department of Education includes the Amador, Pleasanton and Sunol school districts, as well as the New Haven, Newark, Fremont, San Lorenzo, Castro Valley and Hayward school districts "on the other side of the hill."

None of the districts, when the funds are divied up, will receive much. As Gloria Jones, Coordinator of Pupil Personnel Services, has said, "the funds would be used for a plan to plan."

When fully implemented, a credentialed Special Education teacher with three years of experience would be assigned to a school. That person would coordinate instructional and resource services at the school.

The "resource person" would be responsible for setting up the Special Education program, gathering any pertinent medical data about pupils, handle the grading and act as liaison with parents.

While full implementation of a Special Education program, statewide, is targeted for 1981, Amador and Pleasanton educators have been hard at work laying the foundation.

At a meeting almost a month ago, Mrs. Jones noted that three schools in the district, including Walnut Grove, have begun the planning process. Six teacher teams were sent to a resource center in Castro Valley earlier to receive a briefing by Ann T'Selle of the Castro Valley Unified School District.

Also working in laying the groundwork is Joe Buonsante, who explained the role of the resource person at the joint boards meeting last month.

When the planning funds are received, the consortium would then proceed towards developing a comprehensive plan and submitting a declaration of intent for same to Rock LaFleche, the County Superintendent of Schools.

These would be the key and most time-consuming steps. Once this is accomplished, the Special Education plans would be implemented. It would then be up to the individual districts to hire and assign resource people.

As we have noted before, Special Education would serve youngsters with learning, physical, communication and severely handicapped. Just who in each district will decide what students belong in these categories is uncertain.

We are all aware of students who may have a learning handicap in one subject but are above average in all others.

And we all have observed youngsters who could not or would not speak-up in the presence of teachers or other adults . . . yet got by quite well with their studies. Would such a child be considered as having a "communication handicap?"

Obviously, the person or persons at each school deciding who will be "in" Special Education will have considerable sway over the child's life at school.

This is a program, then, that commands the attention of parents. It has the potential for giving ALL children a better chance at receiving a meaningful education. But there are pitfalls and parents must be apprised of these.

round the town

When it comes to fighting for the cause, most of us are content to cry a little, sign a petition, attend one public hearing or maybe go so far as write a letter to the editor. Not John Marshall. He compiles a history of the quest, binds the whole thing in a handsome scrap book, and then ships a copy to THE MAN WHO —

In the case of the Embarcadero Freeway, The Man is Joseph Alioto. He wants to take the offending structure down. Has the State of California just about talked into doing the deed. You and I will pay the tab — both for the original millions invested to build that structure, for the cost of destroying it, and for its beautified replacement. A lot of folks believe there's something wrong with Alioto's campaign . So we cry a little. — John Marshall writes a book.

It is a work of art. Tells Joe what's wrong with SF's whole transportation system, then sets forth sound alternatives, in detail, with maps. It isn't just the Embarcadero. John also takes a hard look at Alcatraz Island, Angel Island, "ornamental termination for Market Street at the Ferry Building." And there is a closing chapter on how one other town attacked its problems. "Six Flags Over California" was the unwanted visitor. Pleasanton was the setting. The people (and the local press, John is kind to explain) spoke up. We won. The Texas carnival lost.

John Marshall thinks there's a lesson there. He wants Joe Alioto to know it can be done. Without costing the taxpayers a bundle. We might all hope Joe gets the message. He can hardly overlook the album. It's a dilly.

The City of Mante Manteca knows how to take on the Bad Guys. You will recall how Mantecans feel Governor Brown's decision to cancel the Highway 120 bypass to save dollars is akin to burning down the barn in order to catch the mouse.

Manteca has launched a mighty effort to SAVE THE 120 BYPASS. City council budgeted $5000 for the fight. Business people are joined by home owners in a big march on the state bureaucracy. Billboards go up advising motorists that "Manteca's traffic congestion is YOUR problem too!"

It has really given Manteca something to holler about. "Save Our Town" is the cry. Like to bet that it all pays off. When a community wants something bad enough, and believes in that cause, then no obstacle is too great. Local leaders please copy.

* * *

He didn't mention the item in his detailed pitch to hizzoner the mayor of SF, but John Marshall actually has a historic link, of sorts, with Joe Alioto. They both have roots in local soil, Castlewood in fact.

John and Edith Marshall came to this valley via that abandoned country club. Bought the whole blessed place in a tax sale. Nobody else was much interested. John simply combined his talents as architect, engineer, builder and entrepreneur of big bands to convert Mrs. Hearst's former Hacienda into the Bay Area's swingingest tourist stop. World War II version.

Joe Alioto came along as the next chapter of that Castlewood saga. Joe was part of the investor team that plunked out large amounts of cash to buy and refurbish the former golf mecca. Those investors later sold out to a corporation made up of Castlewood's Proprietory members. Or so we are told.

Now we learn that Joe Alioto still lists "Castlewood Corporation" as one of many investments worth $100,000 or more which that San Francisco servant still has on his books. It might also be noted that it was much the same "group" which a Look Magazine article claimed was Joe's tie to the mafia. So around and around we go.

John Marshall — who shall in no way be confused with Joe's close circle of friends — has settled down to completing the lovely hacienda which John and Edith started in 1951, about the time they sold Castlewood to Aliota et al. The target date for completion of that mansion is 1981, by which time the energetic John Marshall will be that same age, less 1900 years.

That could also be the year when Alioto and associates write the final chapter in "The Saga of the Embarcadero Freeway." But we wouldn't count on it. Peronally, we have our money on the Marhalls, and on the City of Manteca. Those are the type of people who know what they want, and are prepared to fight for it. Anybody care to nominate John Marshall for a seat on the city council??

And just so you will know our cities have not gone totally to hell, along comes today's wire service report telling us that "law - and - order television series now constitute one - third of each week's prime time broadcasting." Why?

"Action dramas reassure people about law enforcement, they are more exciting and believable, and they appeal to a young audience." That's what the network people say.

We have to agree that watching somebody get mugged on "The Streets of San Francisco" is somewhat more realistic than standing by while that seat of environmental wonders destroys a multi - million - dollar chunck of freeway, in order to preserve a "charming old view" which will soon be converted to a multi - storied clutter of offices and restaurants. Now THERE'S a story that no tv audience would find believable. Unless they're from San Francisco.

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

Monday morning after a four day weekend and a one pound box of Warren's A-34 Sun and Shade Blend Kentucky Blue grass seed decorated my typewriter.

The sight disturbed me. A lad in the writing business is critisized in a variety of ways and it occurred to me that this might be one .

Was someone assuming, or at least hinting, the product of my typewriter was the texture, quality and consistancy of the stuff that makes grass grow?

There are, believe me, folks who hint as much or worse when referring to my efforts.

The grass seed was consistant with the way I spent the weekend. Sunday I planted 16 strawberry plants in the plot which raised summer squash and zucchini in 1974.

Scientific farmers all rotate their crops and who am I to stray from the successful path they have worn in the world of agriculture?

"I thought you were going to plant them in the little plot by the kitchen window," the lady of the house remonstrated. "You're not going to plant zucchini there, are you?"

As a matter of fact I had that in mind. Zucchini sprouts a bell shaped, orange flower before giving birth to its fine fruit, but the lady's tone changed my mind.

Apparently she looks on the plant as something less than attractive. But the strawberries went in the old plot. A man must be scientific, must he not?

Anyway the ground was ready for the strawberries there. The other plot needed spading. Sundays I am not in the mood for that type of activity, particularly not after driving an automobile six hours Saturday and spending 45 minutes wearing a wet suit while submerged under some 30 feet of water.

The dive was rewarding but the ride to Pacific Grove was something less than happy. A three mile long traffic jam from a traffic signal just north of Morgan Hill delayed us for about an hour and a half.

The clutch became so hot during that inch by inch crawl by the time we broke into the clear and reached that idiotically interrupted stretch of Interstate 680 which parallels old 101 the Volkswagen was on fire.

I thanked the Sierra Club while searching for a way to call the California State Automobile Association. The fire went out while I was searching for a telephone.

Believe it or not, my friends, there is a place in San Jose — labeled the flying freeway by the natives — where the state has, unintentionally, I am sure, erected a monument to the idiocy of some environmentalists.

The monument, like some furturistic cement sculpture, rises above Story Road , a stretch of highway high in the air, beginning nowhere and ending the same place.

It was, I am told, once part of the link which would join Interstate 680's interrupted southern section with the northern one which has been completed to San Jose's Story Road and stops there where it merges with 280.

The interrupted highway was the work of environmentalists court action, I am told, action which delayed freeway construction until the money was gone, used for other projects.

Motorists pay for that bit of idiocy the way I did Saturday. And it is that kind of unreasoning action which will one day probably put an end to a lot of worthwhile environmental and conservation efforts. Folks don't enjoy sitting in a traffic jam until their automobiles catch fire. Nor are they likely to support those they hold responsible for such catastrophies.

Whatever the case a pleasant dive had the edge removed by a traffic jam caused by the most thoughtless piece of conservation with which I have ever been confronted.

The same thing, by the way, will happen in Dublin Canyon if we are not careful.

Believe me, I was in no mood to prepare a new patch of ground for strawberries Sunday. God knows where the zucchini will go this summer. But I will find a location for them.

There will be no trouble finding a location for the Warren's A-34 Sun and Shade blend Kentucky Bluegrass Seed. There is plenty of room in front where the lawn has been generally taken over by Bermuda.

The Bermuda grass is a gift of the wind and the birds and there is no beating the stuff. They tell folks if they can't win to join and believe me, I have joined the Bermuda grass.

It turns brown in winter but is bright green and beautiful in summer. So I will add the special blend and hope for a little more greenery in the winter.

Jim Merle and Associates, public relations counselors for Warren's Turf Nursery tell me there are three ways of planting lawns. They are through vegetative planting, which means sprigs or plugs of sod, sodding or seeding.

The birds, the wind and I prefer the seeding method. Which is why I will use my unexpected windfall — a pound of this stuff, guaranteed to be weedless, costs six bucks — on our front lawn.

With that, and a little topsoil, I hope to hold even with the birds and the wind. I don't expect to beat them, any more than I hope to pound any sense into the Sierra Club.

But a fellow can try, can't he? Even if some folks believe the stuff he writes is the material which helps grass grow!.

For Wednesday, Feb. 19, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have the answers you need to your problems but your methods will be a bit too wishy-washy to be truly effective.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There will be some confusion in your commercial affairs regarding money you spend or take in. You'll fail to do it in a businesslike manner.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An interfering third party will create doubts for you in regard to an arrangement you've worked out with another. Judge for yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be careful to whom you talk about a matter you want kept confidential. There's a pal who has trouble keeping his lip buttoned.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Most individuals you associate with now can be relied upon. However, one whose motives you suspect should be avoided.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your chaces of succeeding at what you attempt the next few days look very good, if you shun tactics that corrupt your high standards.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your self-interests can be advanced now if measures you take are bold and determined. Also, keep your plans to yourself for awhile.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be sure you get a firm price in writing for purchases you make at this time, when the merchandise is to be delivered later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is not a good period to make agreements hastily just because you don't want to haggle. Take your time. Do it right.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Matters that have a direct effect upon your work or career should be attended to promptly and not put off till tomorrow.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something advantageous to you can be gained through a social contact. A plan you'll fit into will be discussed.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today will be very rewarding if you spend your time cleaning up old tasks and projects that are half finished. Set aside the new.

Feb. 19, 1975

This year you will make several important changes to your liking. Also, gratifying results will be realized upon foundations you've already built.

If South had stopped to think at the start of play, he might have seen the danger of a club-suit block. In that case he could have let East hold the first spade trick. East would probably have led a second spade and South would let him hold that trick, also.

After that South would be able to discard one of dummy's clubs on the ace of spades and score his five club tricks.

Of course, there is no law that would have compelled East to lead a second spade, but South should have been able to work out a way to get his ninth trick by playing and ducking a second spade himself.

North was both philosophical and sarcastic.

He remarked, "Good rubber bridge players should play fast and get to play as many rubbers as possible. They win more that way. You should take more time. You may even find the correct play if you do stop to think."

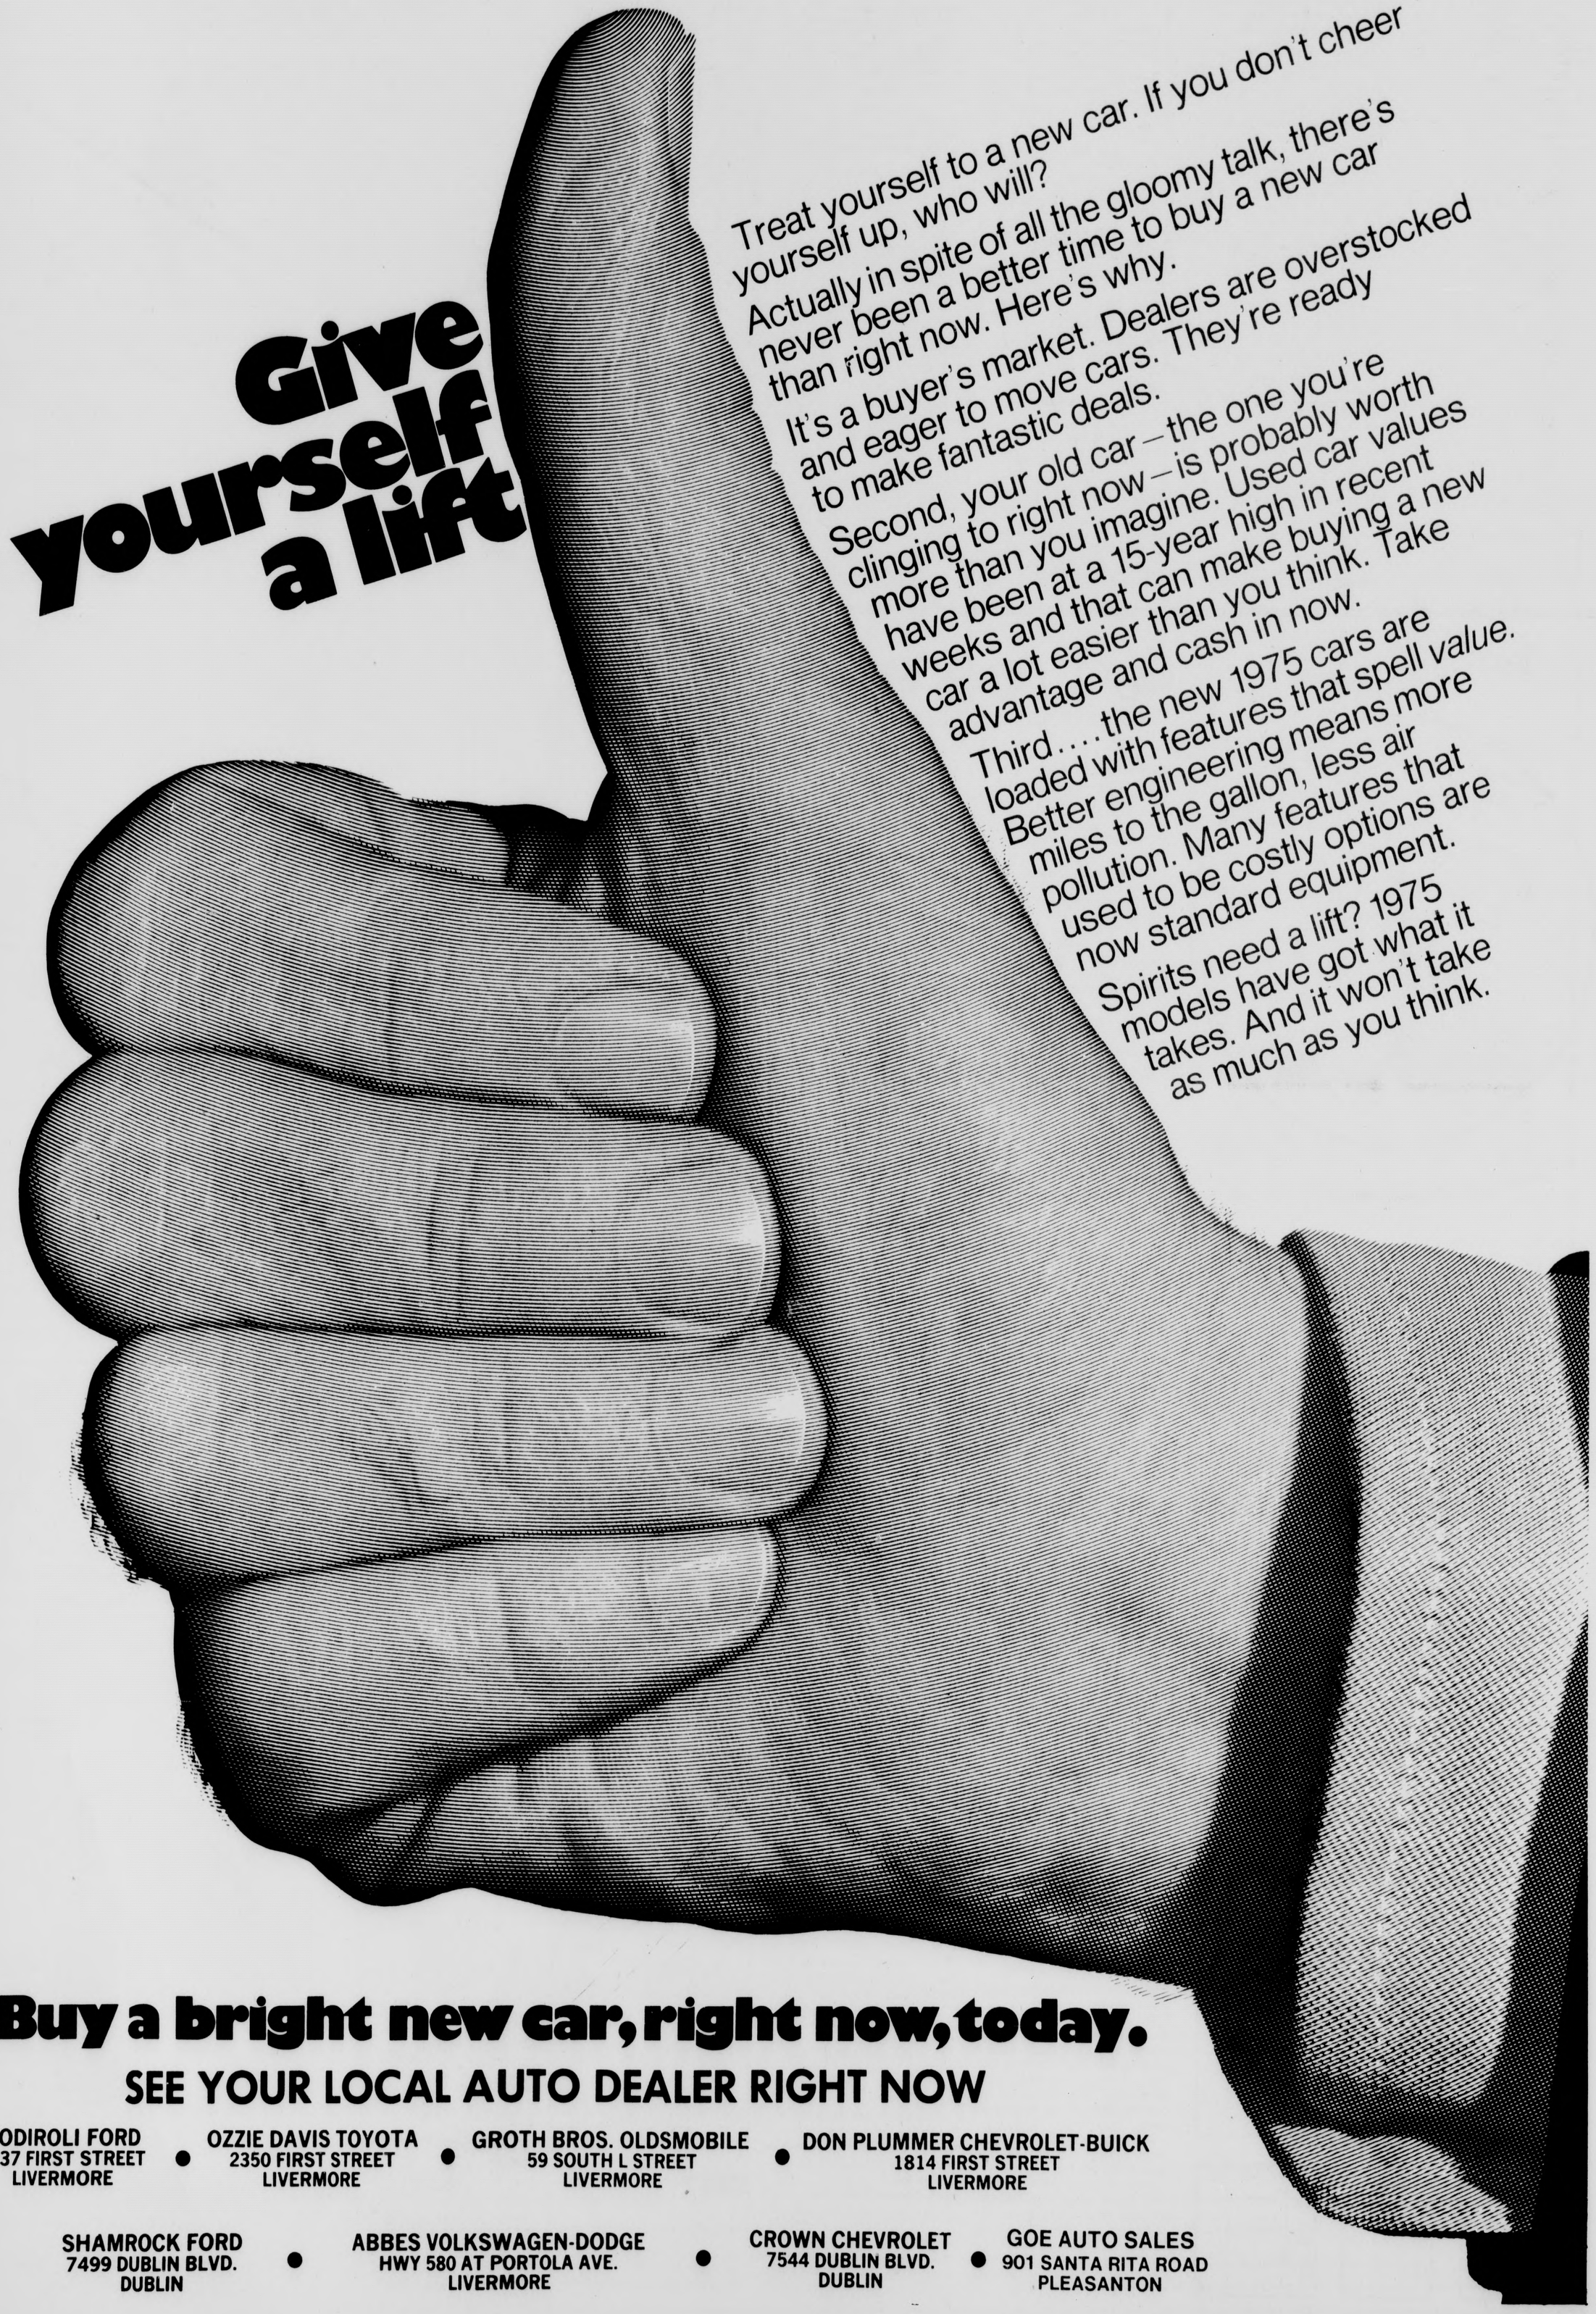
South had paused for a full second before winning the first spade. He played the ace and queen of clubs from dummy with equal speed. East showed out and, all of a sudden, North's nine-eight of clubs were going to block South's fifth club. South struggled along for some time, but could not work out a way to get a ninth trick.

CARNIVAL by Dick Turner

"Maybe we should ask our congressman why they haven't put money on the endangered species list!"

SIDE GLANCES by Gill Fox

"Don't tell him it's an emergency. They'll charge double!"



Treat yourself to a new car. If you don't cheer yourself up, who will?

Actually in spite of all the gloomy talk, there's never been a better time to buy a new car than right now. Here's why.

It's a buyer's market. Dealers are overstocked and eager to move cars. They're ready to make fantastic deals.

Second, your old car—the one you're clinging to right now—is probably worth more than you imagine. Used car values have been at a 15-year high in recent weeks and that can make buying a new car a lot easier than you think. Take advantage and cash in now.

Third....the new 1975 cars are loaded with features that spell value. Better engineering means more miles to the gallon, less air pollution. Many features that used to be costly options are now standard equipment.

Spirits need a lift? 1975 models have got what it takes. And it won't take as much as you think.

Buy a bright new car, right now, today.

Luxury liners for valley BART users

Residents of the Livermore, Pleasanton, Dublin area who are receiving special bus extension service to BART stations may be riding in the most expensive coaches in the urban transit industry.

Bids for 36 delux buses, opened at an AC Transit board of directors meeting recently, illustrated the extent of inflation which has hit coach manufacturers.

The lowest apparent bidder was Flxible Co. with a bid of $71,108 per bus delivered.

All bids will be referred to management for study and a report back to the board. However, award of a contract is based on final approval of a federal grant which would pay 80 per cent of the total cost. The other 20 per cent would be paid for from sales tax generated in the Bay Area.

At BART's request, the buses would be comfortable suburban types with a raised deck so all of the large, recliner type seats would face forward. The floor would be carpeted and entry and exit would be through a front door.

The 45 passenger buses would be similar to those operated by Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation pistrict, with one major difference. The coaches for valley commuters would have a new automatic temperature control system which is expected to keep the temperature within one degree of 68 degrees, whether it requires air conditioning, heat or outside ventilation.

AC Transit's last order for 120 standard, 40-foot buses without air conditioning went to Flxible on Feb. 27, 1974 at a price of $42,372 per bus delivered.

School bands to give SF performance

LIVERMORE — Both the Mendenhall and East Avenue Intermediate School bands have been invited to perform at the Western Division of the Music Educators' Convention, to be held Monday (Feb. 24) in San Francisco.

The performance will be at the Hilton Hotel's Imperial Ballroom for music educators from the Western United States.

The honor of receiving an invitation for both bands to appear at the conference has been extended because of their past performance at Bay Section music festivals.

There will be outstanding bands, orchestra and choral groups from the western United States performing throughout the conference, which starts Friday, Feb. 21.

The two Livermore bands will perform in a session called "Developing the Junior High School Band." Gerald Stasko, director of the Mendenhall band, and Howard Vierra, director of the East Avenue group, will be clinicians at the session after the performances.

The East Avenue band will perform: "Symphonic Overture" by Charles Carter; excerpts from the opera "Die Meistersinger" by Richard Wagner; and "America, the Beautiful" by Samuel Ward, arranged by James D. Ploynar.

$450 donation to aid buying O'Neill house

The Eugene O'Neill Foundation has received a donation of more than $450 to go toward the purchase of the famed playwright's house in Danville.

Contra Costa Parks Council made the donation, said foundation member Mrs. Hilda Perlowin.

Tao House, once O'Neill's home, is located east of Danville adjacent to the Las Trampas Regional Wilderness.

The foundation is attempting to raise about $500,000 which, it is hoped, will be matched by federal and state grants for the purchase of the house, said Mrs. Perlowin.

Memberships are being sold for $5, with a $50 donation entitling contributors to have their names placed on plaques in the house.

Slide show presentations are being made in the valley to interest residents in donating to the cause, she said.

The local membership drive is "very successful," said Mrs. Perlowin, but the foundation also is attempting to get corporations to donate.

For more information, contact the foundation at P.O. Box 402, Danville, Ca. 94526.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO FILE A NEGATIVE DECLARATION, COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PLAN AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM, HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1974.

February 19, 1975

In accordance with the provisions set forth in Resolution No. 74-24, as amended (Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures), adopted by the City Council of the City of Pleasanton on February 11, 1974, the Community Development Plan and Community Development Program of the City of Pleasanton, to be funded under the provisions of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, has been determined to require a negative declaration.

It is the opinion of the Director of Housing and Community Development that the Community Development Plan and Community Development Program, the major components of which are the replacement of approximately 2,700' of obsolete and inadequate water mains and the extension of a collector street for approximately 375' both of which will take place in an area which is already completely urbanized, would not, to a significant degree, create any of the effects enumerated in Resolution 74-24, which indicate that the environment will be harmed. The basis for this decision is that the Director of Housing and Community Development has found that the project will not:

1. Conflict with environmental plans and goals that have been adopted by the community where the project is to be located;
2. Create a substantial and demonstrable negative aesthetic effect;
3. Substantially affect a rare or endangered species of animal or plant, or habitat of such a species;
4. Cause substantial interference with the movement of any resident or migratory fish or wildlife species;
5. Breach any published national, state or local standards relating to solid waste or litter control;
6. Result in a substantial detrimental effect on air or water quality, or on ambient noise levels for adjoining areas;
7. Involve the possibility of contaminating a public water supply system or adversely affecting ground water;
8. Cause substantial flooding, erosion or siltation;
9. Expose people or structures to major geologic hazards;
10. Result in substantial topographic changes;
11. Cause damage to buildings or sites of historical, architectural, archaeological significance.
12. Create impacts which have the potential to degrade the quality of the environment, and/or curtailing the range of the environment.
13. Create impacts which achieve short-term, to the disadvantage of long-term, environmental goals.
14. Create impacts for a project which are individually limited, but cumulatively considerable.
15. Cause substantial adverse effects on human beings, either directly or indirectly.

For more information on this case, contact the Department of Housing and Community Development, 200 Bernal Avenue, Pleasanton, CA 94566. Telephone 846-3202.

Unless any written appeals to this case are received by this department within ten (10) days of the above date, this decision will become effective.

IF YOU'RE SELF-EMPLOYED YOU COULD BE WORTH AT LEAST ANOTHER $100,000 TEN YEARS FROM NOW

Put Franklin Savings and the Government to work for you with Franklin's free retirement trust service under the Keogh Act (HR-10), which lets you set aside annually in your own retirement fund the lesser of $7500 or 15% of your earned income.

Here's how it works: if you put the allowed tax-deductible amount of $7500 yearly into your retirement plan...and combine it with our tax-deferrable minimum interest, the total in your account after only ten years will amount to $101,246.55.

That's at our basic interest rate of 5¼%, compounded daily. At our 7½% interest rate, compounded daily, the amount in your fund in ten years could total $115,935.57.

This Tax Deductible Plan for the Self-Employed is available to you as a free service (no administration costs, no trust fees) at any Franklin Savings office.
